WEATHERTEX NAMED AS THE BUILDING DESIGNERS ASSOCIATION OF AUSTRALIA'S NEW PRINCIPAL PARTNER

The Building Designers Association of Australia (BDAA) is proud to announce Weathertex, Australia's Leading Supplier of Timber Weatherboards, as its new Principal Partner.

BDAA has enjoyed a long-term relationship with Weathertex, a company that over the years has become the preferred cladding manufacturer by many designers and builders all over the world, with history dating back to 1939.

The National President of BDAA Frank Geskus said the Principal Partner is the pinnacle among its many industry partners, which include some of the highest profile, top quality suppliers of the Australian building industry.

"Our members are proud to choose our industry partner's products and services, making these the prime components of BDAA members designs," said Mr Geskus.

"The Principal Partner is a crucial relationship and sends a message to our members about the type of partners we want to work with.

"Weathertex have a great reputation, are 100% Australian owned and manufactured and are one of the first global manufacturers to receive a Green Tag Platinum Certification.

"We are proud to be working so closely with one of the leading sustainable suppliers in the building industry."

Weathertex Managing Director Jason O'Hagan said their partnership with BDAA was highly valued and a good fit for both organisations.

"With our sustainable products and their eco-friendly designs, it makes the BDAA and Weathertex a perfect fit," said Mr O'Hagan.

"With 90% of Australian homes being designed by building designers and our sustainable products have lining and defining many of these, this partnership makes sense and is just the next step in working together.

"We look forward to providing quality products to BDAA designers for many years to come."

Weathertex offers a wide range of high quality timber cladding, weatherboard and architectural panels, from classic to modern styles. For projects of any size, inside or outside the home, Weathertex has cladding and timber wall panelling solutions to suit your needs.
